HOW will you use the information you learned?

Participants overall mentioned they learned:

- To share information with coworkers, staff, and families
- To distinguish between instrumental and social communication, and focusing intervention on the latter
- To increase social communication during sessions with children and families

"I can now differentiate between instrumental communication (big in PT) and the more fruitful social communication. This will help me to use better strategies and collaborate better with families to address social, communication, and motor needs."

"I will be changing my strategies during therapy sessions to include more social communicative language."
